Difference in Conditions (DIC)
Extending coverage beyond your underlying policy

Floods, earthquakes and other perils are never in your plan, and almost every business needs protection against these potential threats. With Difference in Conditions (DIC) insurance, your property insurance coverage is broadened either by adding to an account written by members of Great American Insurance Group, or issued as a standalone policy to supplement another carrier’s coverage.

Closing coverage gaps in your property coverage
The nature of Difference in Conditions coverage is to receive more complete protection against infrequent large loss events, such as flood or earthquake. Covered property can include the insured’s real property, personal property and improvements, as well as time element exposures.

More affordable, better protection
DIC makes more complete insurance protection affordable by:

• Tailoring coverage to your specific needs by selecting only the causes of loss you want to cover and the time element options that work best for you.
• Purchasing only the limit you need for blanket property coverage without danger of a coinsurance penalty.
• Choosing a significant deductible that fits your ability to assume loss, rather than being unprotected against a potential disaster.
